for Inspiring Greatness to Impact Student Learning

31st Annual Model Schools Conference, June 25-June 28 in Orlando, FL*

Montgomery, AL—The International Center for Leadership in Education \(ICLE\), whose mission is to celebrate, inspire, and support today's K-12 educators, has named Brewbaker Technology Magnet High School a 2023 Model School for its focus on relationships and rigorous and relevant academics to impact students. The team at BrewTech recognizes opportunities for growth, fosters a strong culture, and holds high expectations for all students.

Brewbaker Technology Magnet High School is one of 30 Model Schools from across the United States that will share best practices at ICLE's 31st Annual Model Schools Conference. The event provides the inspiration thousands of passionate teachers and leaders need to validate and affirm the great work they do, and to challenge them to share replicable and creative strategies that can produce results in any school.

"Model Schools are passionate about kids—and their educators are persistent about creating effective learning environments to benefit the students and communities they serve," says Dr. Linda Lucey, Program Chair and ICLE Associate Partner. "Each of the 2023 Model Schools is proud to share its story of perseverance and strategies others can take away and make their own."

"We are honored to have been chosen as presenters at this year's Model School's Conference. The work our data team completes is amazing and we are beyond excited to share our best practices with other educators."

Jason Norred, BrewTech Administrator

"A passion for learning is what makes the Model Schools Conference a celebration for educators," says Dr. Lucey. "The energy attendees bring to the conference—as well as the concrete and tangible strategies they learn from others—inspires impactful student learning."
